The Top 10 Reasons to Join us in Jacksonville

Jerry Brown, Antioch Community Church - VP for Planning

This year's conference is going to be so good. We have filled the week with awesome opportunities. And if you take advantage of all there is to do, you'll understand why it takes a whole week to enjoy it all! Here are my Top Ten Reasons to join us in Jacksonville:

- 10 Great food! We have some special meal opportunities for you at the Fellowship Luncheon, Prayer Breakfast, and Supper Club on Tuesday evening, in addition to the banquet on Thursday night.
- 9 Appreciate the sites and heritage of Jacksonville. The African American Heritage Trail explores some of the Black History of the region. You can investigate some of the opportunities and find information at www.visitjacksonville.com/things-to-do/culture/history/african-american-heritage-trail. And, don't forget about the beach (remember the sunscreen).
- 8 The Labyrinth will be set up in a special room available at designated times for your participation and inspiration. If you've never experienced it before, prepare for a unique experience.
- 7 Prayer – we will, as always, have the Prayer Room available during the conference for your quiet meditation. We will also have an opportunity to gather for a time of public prayer at Jacksonville Landing, adjacent to our hotel. But we invite you this year to make it a special time of prayer and fasting, as we ask God to heal our land from hatred and violence. And if you fast, we ask you to share what you would have spent on lunch to donate to a local charity seeking to stop violence.
- 6 Our Bible Study leader will be Rev. Dr. Marvin McMickel, President, Director of the Doctor of Ministry Program, and Professor of African American Religious Studies at Colgate Rochester Crozer Divinity School. As an outstanding, recognized lecturer/educator, we look forward to a great program.
- 5 Workshops will focus on a variety of topics as diverse as death, prayer, worship, fellowship, and change in the church. The workshop leaders are well-respected authorities in their fields, and we look forward to excellent presentations.
- 4 The Children, Youth, and Young Adult programs promise to be stimulating for all involved. The Youth and Young Adults will again be participating in community missions.
- 3 The music will be uplifting. But the best way to really enjoy and take advantage of this opportunity is to join the choir – all are invited to join Roberta and other ICCC attendees, to share your talents in praising God.
- 2 Worship, as always, will be inspiring, enlightening, and encouraging. As we, God's whosoever people, gather to praise Him, we will surely be motivated and encouraged this week.
- 1 Fellowship with family and friends (old and new)...priceless!

OH! ...there's one more thing. Tuesday night we're having a talent show, and you're invited to attend and participate. I know we have wonderfully talented people in the ICCC; here's your chance to share that gift. See the Talent Show attachment in this newsletter or on the web site, and join us Tuesday evening to share, participate, and enjoy. Reservations to participate are required!

See, I couldn't get it all in with only ten reasons, and you may have a hard time experiencing and enjoying it all in less than a week. But I challenge you to join us, take it all in, enjoy the week, and go home renewed, refreshed, and loving Jesus even more (and eager to share that love and joy with others).

See you in Jacksonville!

An Introduction to Grief Recovery:

Exploring the Common Myths about Grief & How to Help Others

Rev. Lisa Fournier

There is a lot of misinformation in our culture about grief. Because it makes others uncomfortable, it is often minimized or dismissed. When we suffer a loss, we are expected to quickly "Get over it." As a result, griever feel even more isolated and alone and that something must be wrong with them. This results in unresolved grief, which shows up in unhealthy behaviors down the road. In our society the focus seems to be on being positive and happy, and so the underlying message is "It's NOT OK to NOT BE OK". Often griever are told "It takes time" or "Be strong", which are not helpful comments when someone's heart is broken. In this interactive presentation, we will explore some common myths about grief and what you--as clergy, family, friend, or concerned community member--can do to help.

This workshop is presented by Rev. Lisa Fournier, Advanced Certified Grief Recovery Specialist® with the Grief Recovery Institute, ordained interfaith minister and life coach. After experiencing the "Big 3" losses herself (Death of family members, divorce after a long-term marriage, and job loss), Lisa is passionate about helping others process unresolved grief and discover new purpose and joy in life. Lisa also has recent experience as a Hospice Chaplain after leaving her corporate career in Leadership and Organizational Development and Executive Coaching 4 years ago. Her book, "Bliss and Bless: A Guide to Living Well and Learning from Loss" is due to be published in the Fall of 2019.

It Takes Faith

Rev. Eloise Crenshaw

Faith is the substance or assurance of things we hope for, but have not yet received. Faith (confidence, belief, trust) is also our evidence of that which is not seen—the invisible spiritual things.

In this workshop, led by Rev. Eloise Crenshaw, we will explore the meaning of faith and what it takes to live a life that will deliver God's promises. The kind of prayer that moves mountains is the prayer for the fruitfulness of God's kingdom. God can do anything. In order for faith to work when God answers prayer, first you must be a believer, second you must not hold a grudge, be able to forgive, third you must not pray with selfish motives and fourth your request must be for the good of God's Kingdom. To pray effectively you need faith in God, not faith in the object of your request. If you focus only on your request you will have nothing if your request is refused. God wants us to anticipate and expect miracles to take place. Faith and trust in what it takes to believe God is who he says he is.

When you forgive unrighteousness done unto you, the other person no longer has the power over you. It takes faith in believing you have the power and authority to go, do and say what God says.

It takes faith to believe that healing will take place. It takes faith to give, it takes faith to live. God gives you life and gives it more abundantly. In order for miracles to take place it takes movement for it to manifest, so faith must be unleashed.

It takes faith to praise a God that will not forsake you. It takes faith to pray, fast and slow. It takes time to increase your faith and let God operate in your progress. IT TAKES FAITH!!

Plan Intentional Worship that Helps Lead to Relationship with God:

How to Engage Your Congregation in a Journey of Worship

Antoinette Cook

At the end of this workshop, you will be able to plan worship services that intentionally flow, while staying relevant to the scripture and the sermon. You will learn how to keep your whole worship team involved and informed. Each element you plan will be purposefully placed to lead people on a meaningful journey of worship. Along that journey, you'll become aware of the moments where the Holy Spirit is moving and will be likely places for people to respond to God.

This workshop is led by Antoinette Cook, Director of Worship at Antioch Community Church in Kansas City, MO.

Leading a Congregation Through Change

Rev. Bruce Jones

During the twentieth century, American churches developed a set of methods and practices that shaped ministry, evangelism, and organization for decades. As with many other institutions today, however, the biggest dilemma facing the church is its past success. Yet the church's very survival throughout history has been tied to its willingness and ability to adapt to the unique conditions of the day. In this workshop we will examine six critical choices that will help lead your congregation through change.

Bruce Jones is the organizing pastor and founder of Imagine Church, Charlotte, and a regional trustee of the International Council of Community Churches. He has assisted in launching two new congregations and has led churches in college, university, and suburban settings. He has training and background in congregational development, evangelism, and church growth.

Black to the Future: Science Fiction as Sacred Text

"Nothing happens in the "real" world unless it first happens in the images in our heads." --- Gloria Anzaldúa

Evil cannot succeed without first capturing the images in our heads. How is prophetic possibility constrained by our anesthetized imaginations? This interactive workshop explores world building and theology in speculative fiction in literature, film, television, music, short stories, and graphic novels. We will particularly engage decolonized notions of time, peace, love, health, identity, ability, and technology as found in the sci-fi work of Black and non-Black people of color. Ultimately, we will think together about how these texts can spark revolution in our ministry work.

Naomi Washington

This workshop is led by Rev. Naomi Washington Leapheart, Minister | Faith & Justice Organizer | Organizational Consultant.

Do Black Lives Matter to God?

A Theological Reflection on Suffering, Race, Resistance, and Redemption

If God is benevolent, just, and powerful, how can/does suffering persist in the lives of Black people living the United States? How do our understandings of sin, evil, and salvation influence the Christian response to racial injustice? In this workshop, we will explore the theological implications of Black suffering and connect those implications to the Church's call to do justice.

This workshop is led by Rev. Naomi Washington Leapheart, Minister | Faith & Justice Organizer | Organizational Consultant.

Life as a Chaplain

The chaplain workshop will be designed to provide information regarding the role and responsibilities of a chaplain while also offering insights on how chaplaincy differs from pastoring. A panel of ICCC chaplains will present various aspects of chaplaincy including some of the basic qualifications which required as one seeks a chaplaincy career path.

Planning to participate on this panel so far are ICCC Chaplains Sharyon Cosey, Will Armstrong, Wendy Childress, Elizabeth Gobeli, Hare Varnon and Brad Walgren.

Unique Events on our Schedule

We have three exciting and unique opportunities for you to participate in as we gather at our annual conference in Jacksonville this year:

1. Talent Show – Our entertainment on Monday night will be our own talented artists. We did this several years ago, and were impressed by the level of talent among our attendees. So this will give you a chance to share your gifts and talents with the conference (you'll have an audience from around the country, and the world!). Do you have any special musical ability (instrument, voice, dance, etc.), a comedy or magic act, or any other talent you would like to share with us? If you'd like to participate, check out the ICCC web site for a participation form and send it to the Council office by June 30th so that we can efficiently organize the various acts to allow everyone time to perform. Remember, it needs to be appropriate for the ICCC audience and no longer than 10 minutes. If you'd rather not perform, come and enjoy what surely will be a wonderfully entertaining evening. I know you will be impressed, and treated to an enjoyable time.
2. Prayer Gathering – Similar to last year's gathering, we will meet at Jacksonville Landing for prayer. We will pray for an end to violence in America. Our country seems so full of violence lately, even in our schools and churches that were once considered to be safe havens. The hatred and violence takes on so many forms: personal attacks with guns and knives, domestic violence, emotional violence seen in the bullying in our schools, violent and hateful messages sent via internet, road rage, sex trafficking, racial profiling... there seems to be no end. We will meet in the courtyard of Jacksonville Landing, a gathering place of shops and restaurants to publicly proclaim our exasperation with the violence in our country and to pray for peace. We will meet over the lunch hour on Wed, July 17th. You may personally choose to make this gathering a time of fasting and contemplation (I humbled myself with fasting, and my prayer would return to my own heart. Psalm 35:13). If you do, we will give you the opportunity to share what you would have spent on lunch as an offering to a local charity focused on reducing violence in our society.
3. Labyrinth – You will have an opportunity to experience a Labyrinth. If you've never walked through a labyrinth, it is an ancient symbol that relates to wholeness, combining the imagery of a circle into a wandering, but purposeful path. It can be a peaceful, prayerful, contemplative journey. We will have information to share, and facilitators to guide you through the journey, as you use this time to quiet your mind and focus your thoughts on God. See page 11 for more Labyrinth information.

These are three very different and unique experiences at our conference this year, but special moments for you to remember and encounters to take home. We challenge you to take advantage of all events planned for this year's time together, but especially these.

See you in Jacksonville!

Our prayers are with:

- Rev. Carl Davis, Senior Pastor at New Harvest Christian Church and the ICCC Ministerium President, as he recovers from surgery.
- Rev. Stephen York, ICCC VP of Leadership Development, as he prepares for cataract surgery.
- Rev. Ron Miller, retired Senior Pastor at Wilson Memorial Union Church and ICCC leader as he continues physical therapy.
- Don Ashmall and his family as they continue to grieve. There will be a memorial service for Peggy Ashmall on July 14, 2019 at the West Gouldsboro Union Church in Maine. Don knows that this is in the midst of everyone's busy summer schedule, and thanks those who can attend (and those who attended the Michigan service) and to those who cannot be present, he thanks you for your kind thoughts and prayers.
- Carol Droege, Wilson Memorial Union Church, as she continues to recover from surgery.
- Rev. Tony Begonia, Heart of Jesus Ministries, as he prepares for elbow surgery.
- Rev. Sharyon Cosey, ABBA Church of Renewed Faith, as she continues physical therapy for her ankle.
- Rev. Michael Donahue, Speed Memorial Church, as he continues to address his medical challenges.
- Rev. Bruce Merton, Pastor Emeritus Peace Community Church, as he recovers from knee surgery.
- Kai Tom, brother of ICCC Executive Director Phil Tom, who is undergoing physical therapy after his surgeries, in New York City.

Book REVIEW

By Rev. Kenneth N. Nelson

JUST MERCY: A Story of Justice and Redemption

by Bryan Stevenson ★★★★★ stars.

Audiobook, narrated by: Bryan Stevenson, Length: 11 hrs. and 5 mins, rated 5 stars, $12.99

with Amazon Kindle purchased of $14.99, Google Play, $14.99

Barnes & Noble, paperback, $12.49; 336 pp. Spiegel & Grau. $28.00 Copyright © 2014.

As we prepare for our Annual Conference, we welcome you back to our final review of Just Mercy. In recent news (<https://psmag.com/magazine/bryan-stevenson-ps-interview>) and entertainment (<https://eji.org/news/just-mercy-movie-films-in-montgomery>) stories, the Just Mercy memoir continues to grow in interest and create change.

In the final chapters of Just Mercy, Stevenson outlines his struggles, his success, and his strength. Starting with Chapter 12 (Mother, Mother), Stevenson reexamines the case of Marsha Colbey, a poor working white woman with a family of six children and husband, who has a stillborn death and is charged with murder. This passage reviews how governmental powers attempted to ignore the rights of the poor and destroy their lives. Stevenson takes on the case and Marsha Colbey is freed after 20 years of wrongful imprisonment. In situations like Colbey's case, Stevenson asks: Who is the most guilty of wrongdoing? Is it the state? Yes. Is it our legislatures? Yes. Is it our judiciary? Yes. This chapter illustrates the intentionality of a corrupt and bankrupt criminal justice system that preys on the poor rather than defend them.

In Chapter 13 (Recovery), Stevenson returns to the Walter McMillan storyline. Stevenson shares not only the success of the case, but also the downside of the case, the challenges of McMillan's life after six years of wrongful imprisonment. Stevenson profiles how the media attempted to use McMillan's story for their own benefit. And then shares his personal journey of dealing with good things, loss, and grief. In Chapter 14 (Cruel and Usual), Stevenson describes another flaw of the criminal justice system: the treatment of juveniles, especially Evan Miller. Miller was convicted as a juvenile for monstrous crime, but Miller learned from his mistakes. Despite Miller's learning, the State sought to keep him in prison. Stevenson explains how he used expert testimony about the development of juveniles before the U.S. Supreme Court to create new law dealing more appropriately with juveniles. In Chapter 15 (Broken), Stevenson explores his own demons: McMillan is dying from dementia and another client, Jimmy Dale, is executed. Stevenson recalls deep regret about these events. It seems all of Stevenson's efforts point him to quitting more than continuing. It is during this time of deep reflection that Stevenson discovers that we need mercy and its empowering impact for ourselves and others to overcome the pain when we are challenged with systematic change.

In Chapter 16 (The Stonecatchers' Song of Sorrow), Stevenson learns and explain an impact idea from an old woman by using principles discovered from the Jesus story about catching the first stone in John 8 of the Bible. Stevenson learns the importance of having a stone catcher on the team. The stone catcher is the old woman, who helps support Stevenson's work and encourages him to continue his efforts. Finally, in the Epilogue, Stevenson summarizes how the idea of mercy and forgiveness has an enduring impact to transform our lives, our country, and our world.

Description of the World Peace Labyrinth (Original and Adaptation)

THE ORIGINAL WORLD PEACE LABYRINTH was developed in cooperation with the inter-faith Chaplains Office of the Salt Lake City Olympic Games. It is an elliptical seven circuit 24' x 35' portable labyrinth that was available in the Olympic Village Chapel about 6 hours a day during the 2002 Winter Olympics and the associated Paralympics.

The 2002 Winter Olympics occurred within a short time frame of the September 11 tragedy. It was the intention of the Chaplain's office to provide a sacred, peace-filled space as athletes came together following the trauma of 9/11.

Visitors, athletes and staff could walk the labyrinth in preparation, in prayer, in meditation, and for peaceful intent. A central theme of the labyrinth is the Tree of Life - found in many cultures. In the Bible book of Genesis, the tree of life is in the center of the Garden of Eden, and four rivers flow from its roots in four directions.

The original overall design consisted of seven paths in concentric ellipses with proportions set by Sacred Geometric ratios. The lines are painted in Green, Brown & Blue to represent harmony with the Earth. The labyrinth is divided in quadrants, which can represent the four winds or four directions. The material is white, a color representing peace. Symbols of peace taken from many cultures are encountered along the path. A Medicine Wheel, The Peace Crane, a Torch, A Handshake, The Dolphin, A Rainbow, & Dove with Olive Branch. The original World Peace Labyrinth has appeared at other events since the Olympics. The variation of the archetypal 7-circuit classical labyrinth was designed by labyrinth creator, John Ridder. In March 2019 it was sent to a community in California that was devastated by the fires in 2018, and is now used for community gathering, support and sacred space for that community.

THE WORLD PEACE LABYRINTH #2 – Adapted for multi-purpose uses, and Labyrinth available for this Conference.

In 2014 Kathryn McLean (who is generously providing the labyrinth for our conference) was part of a 4-person team that created a 28' in diameter adaptation of the original World Peace Labyrinth with John Ridder, the designer of the original World Peace Labyrinth. This version is circular instead of elliptical, and the 7 focus circles are left open so that different themed walks are possible. They still are often used to symbolize the 7 continents of the world. It is painted in 4 shades of blue symbolizing flow of spiritual journey, in and out of light and darkness. The center is 6' in diameter so that a larger number of people can be in the center at a time. This labyrinth is dedicated to Franklin J. McLean (her father) whose worked tirelessly in restorative justice, alternative dispute resolution and peacemaking in the Toronto, Canada area. Written under the painted labyrinth pattern lines in the center are written the 7 Grandfather's Teachings focal words honoring the mediation work my father did with the First Nations People of Canada and the Canadian Government. These words are unseen, but present, circling the center. The seven words are: Humility, Bravery, Honesty, Wisdom, Truth, Respect, Love.

This labyrinth has been walked at clergy renewal retreats, walks of peace, walks of remembrance, in retirement communities, colleges, universities, after workshops on conflict resolution, with children, at World Labyrinth Day Celebrations, birthdays, Lenten services, communion services, denominational conferences, meditative walks and environmental focused walks. Symbols and artwork may be placed in the 7 focal areas/center to add a particular focus. Kathryn is an ordained minister in the Presbyterian Church (USA), living in the Jacksonville FL area and serves as a Spiritual Director, Veriditas Trained Advanced Labyrinth Facilitator and Board Certified Chaplain.

A Word from the WCF

This is the last article I will be submitting for the Women Christian Fellowship. Two years have flown by as I served as your President. It has been my privilege and honor to serve in this capacity!

The members of this organization are wonderful and it has been extremely rewarding to work with the members of the Executive Board, Ladies thank you!

I come to you with one last plea. If you have not been active in the meetings, please consider joining us this year. I would also like to address one last concern, THE WEARING OF WHITE at the business meeting. Traditionally, the women wear white at the business meeting to commemorate deceased members. However it is NOT MANDATORY. PLEASE, do not let that deter you from attending the meeting. All women are invited to attend.

Also, please remember to bring items for the bazaar, and gift cards for our shoe box ministry.

I close thanking God for Phil Tom, Harry Fooockle, Bill Samuels, Abraham Wright and DeAnn. It has been my pleasure working with you. I pray that the Lord will continue to bless this organization and I pray that the ICCC continues to meet the needs of Christians all over the world.

Blessings, Carol Nichols
